

What is Intuition?

How do you recognize it? How does it work? Is it possible to train the faculty of intuitive perception? Is the inner voice of intuition just a feeling? Is there also such a thing as “intuitive thinking”?

This first intercultural (USA, Hawaii, Western Samoa, European Union) qualitative as well as quantitative interpretive scientific study represents research on the questions above. It has been developed to suit the following fields of application: the arts, psychology, education, psychotherapy, supervision/coaching as well as economics and management.

Due to numerous requests for this scientific work to be internationally accessible, we are looking for donations and sponsors for its translation in 2011/12.

We can expect these insights to be an increasingly important basis for many further works, not only for diploma projects and master's theses, but for doctoral dissertations and research projects at universities and in applied research. Moreover, intuition is not only an essential basis for the work in various areas of studies, but – increasingly – a tool for man's everyday life.

Prof. H. Wagner, PhD, Chairman of the Board of Trustees of the STEPS to Success Educational Trust www.StufenzumErfolg.de ‘Intuition is at the same time understanding and sensation, and for this reason it is capable of penetrating the whole reality at a glance. Intuition is capable of uniting intellect and heart, thought and feeling, wisdom and love in the quest for truth.’

O. M. Aivanhov
